For Immediate Release: TDECU and University of Houston's Urban Experience Program host 'Financing Your College Education' Financial Empowerment Series

(Lake Jackson, TX) — TDECU – Your Credit Union was pleased to sponsor and present Financing Your College Education, the second in a three-part Financial Empowerment Series hosted in conjunction with the University of Houston's Urban Experience Program (UEP). Students who attended the workshop were provided insight into helping students overcome difficulties in paying for higher education. The workshop covered smart financing options including scholarships and grants, as well as affordable lending options for both students and parents.

Ryan Palma, TDECU's Member Center Manager at the credit union's University of Houston Student Center, presented the workshop and noted, "It's important to assist students in not only finding solutions to finance their education, but to also help them do so responsibly. We appreciate the efforts of both the University of Houston and the Urban Experience Program in helping ensure these students have access to all the tools and resources they need to build a solid financial foundation."

In partnership with TDECU, the Financial Empowerment Series is designed to provide UEP students and the UH community with financial teaching, resources and tools to be fiscally responsible and astute. The program consists of a series of workshops that address the financial interest and educational needs of students. All students are encouraged to engage and participate in the financial empowerment series.

The third and final installment of the series, Road to Financial Independence, is scheduled for April 2nd.
