TDECU is taking strides toward becoming a stronger credit union with the addition of Greg Montana to its Board of Directors. Montana brings over 30 years of executive management experience in the financial services industry, and a long-standing commitment to community service. He will help guide Houston's largest credit union through a new era of expansion and growth.

“I’m excited to join the Board for two reasons,” said Montana. “The impressive leadership team and staff, and TDECU’s purpose to guide their Members along their financial journeys, resonates strongly with me.”

Montana has worked at some of the world’s most recognizable financial and Fortune 500 institutions including Bank of America, PayPal, Lloyds Banking Group, and JP Morgan Chase. TDECU’s Board Chairman David Sikora reached out directly to Montana to help guide the rapidly growing credit union.

“As we look ahead to the future of TDECU, I am thrilled Greg will be joining the board,” said Sikora. “His unparalleled expertise and unwavering commitment to excellence align perfectly with our organization’s values and vision.”

“I think we need to remember that our clients’ needs are growing, the population is growing, and the competition is growing,” says Montana. “If we’re not doing the same, there won’t be a TDECU to serve our Members.”

Greg holds an MBA from the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania and received a BA, cum laude, from Boston College. He received his six sigma Black Belt Certification from Bank of America. Additionally, he is a current member and former Vice Chair of the United Way of Northeast Florida, an active member and former Board Chair of Jacksonville Catholic Charities, and a member of the Advisory Board for Metrolina Association for the Blind in Charlotte, North Carolina.
